How do you know if your pasta water is salty enough? Taste it! (We're serious.) Because your cooking water is the only chance you have to season the pasta itself, it's super-important to treat it like you would any other ingredient. The water should taste about as salty as the ocean!

Adjust rack to top position and preheat oven to 450 degrees. Bring a medium pot of salted water to a boil. Wash and dry produce. Cut tomato into ½-inch-thick wedges; toss on a baking sheet with a drizzle of olive oil, salt, and pepper. Roast on top rack until tender, 15–20 minutes. Meanwhile, halve, peel, and dice half the onion (whole onion for 4 servings). Peel and finely chop garlic.

Heat a drizzle of oil in a large pan over high heat. Add diced onion and season with salt and pepper. Cook, stirring, until slightly softened, 3–4 minutes. Add a drizzle of olive oil and sausage. Cook, breaking up meat into pieces, until browned and cooked through, 4–6 minutes. Add garlic; cook, stirring, until fragrant, 30 seconds. Stir in tomato paste until everything is fully coated.

Once water is boiling, add pasta to pot. Cook, stirring occasionally, until al dente, 9–11 minutes. Reserve ½ cup pasta cooking water, then drain.

While pasta cooks, slowly stir 1 cup plain water (1½ cups for 4 servings) into pan with sausage mixture until thoroughly combined. Reduce heat to medium; simmer, stirring, until thickened, 3–5 minutes. Season with salt and pepper. Stir in cream cheese, half the Parmesan (save the rest for serving), and 1 TBSP butter (2 TBSP for 4) until melted and combined.

Add drained pasta and roasted tomato wedges to pan with sauce; toss to coat. If needed, add splashes of reserved pasta cooking water until everything is coated in a creamy sauce. Season with salt. If you've got some on hand, add a pinch of chili flakes from your pantry if desired.

Divide  ${\bf pasta}$  between plates and top with  ${\bf remaining\ Parmesan}.$

Chicken Sausage is fully cooked when internal temperature reaches 165 degrees.
